

March 26, 2020

To Our Valued Customers,

We would like to inform you that all locations for Walraven remain open and are fully operational.

Walraven is a critical supplier of parts and components to the construction, plumbing, electrical and HVAC industries and numerous other critical business segments. Therefore, Walraven is an essential business and exempt from the recent "Stay-at-Home" orders from local governments.

We have undertaken extraordinary practices to provide a safe work environment for our associates, to deploy technologies that support over 50% of our office team to work remotely and to ensure that our supply chain remains intact and with minimal interruptions to support your continued fulfillment.

Given that this is an ever-changing environment, our commitment to you is to keep you informed of any substantial changes and to periodically provide you with updates.

Please submit your orders to orders.us@walraven.com or your sales representative. Should you have any questions or need for additional information, feel free to contact your sales or customer service representatives.

Regards,

John Mann
President